Tadhg O'Keeffe

More than a decade ago Chuck Orser (1996) identified colonialism, Eurocentrism, capitalism and modernity as the four 'taunts' of the global, post-1500 AD, Historical Archaeology that he was incubating through his monograph series, Contributions to Global Historical Archaeology. There is a good case for thinking that colonialism is the key one of the four, since the subject of Archaeology is rooted in the intellectual traditions of 'the West', and the Historical Archaeology branch of the subject is concerned with a geographical
